

Abentüerung

We print a letter from a well-known, deeply respected, and intensely honourable member of the College who appeals for a resuscitation for the I.C.M.S.S. To judge from his letter, it seems that he is as keen on a bank of charity, rather than as anything else, but that is entirely by the way. The whole thing is, of course, worth a great deal of attention, and we give the suggestion a trial. You can't do less. Our hearty good wishes go with the promoters.

It is a pity that the letter should be so inconclusive, arrived from pains taken to us an editorial—so we zoom out of the situation. But we are sending you a note, and who knows...

The Editor's Reply to the Letter of the 1st of June

The letter from the member of the College who appeals for a resuscitation for the I.C.M.S.S. is a very interesting one, and it is a pity that it should be so inconclusive. It is a pity that the letter should be so inconclusive, arrived from pains taken to us an editorial—so we zoom out of the situation. But we are sending you a note, and who knows...

... which arrived in the early months of 1911. The Gallies were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States. They were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States. They were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States.

In the early part of the 1910s, the Gallies were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States. They were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States. They were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States.

... which arrived in the early months of 1911. The Gallies were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States. They were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States.

In 1911 a Fund for Belgian Relief was started by Jesus men, and brought in nearly £800. Miss M. Lippeus, who as President of the Belgian Relief Society, was very successful in raising money for the Gallies in the United States. They were very popular in the United States, and many of them were sent to the Gallies in the United States.

